City to again offer 'holiday' for home improvement building fees

From Art Schroeder
City of West Sacramento

For the second year, the city of West Sacramento is sponsoring the "Home Improvement Holiday" program, in which building permit fees for local homeowners are waived for a limited time. The "holiday" encourages residents to embark upon qualified home repairs, remodels or upgrades that improve the comfort of their homes and increase property values. The city's Building Division is issuing the special permits on a first-come, first-served basis, April 17-June 30, 2006.

The program applies to minor permits such as central air and heating, re-roofing, stucco or siding home exteriors, fencing, portable spas, electrical repairs, water or sewer lines, and residential additions (not to exceed 250 square feet). The city also requires that:

Homes be owner-occupied;

Permits must be applied for over-the-counter at the city's Building Division;

One permit per location;

Construction cost is limited to $20,000; and

Work shall be finished, inspected and approved within a 180-day period.

In addition to having their building fees waived, permit-holders qualify for price discounts from the following West Sacramento businesses: Hollywood Hardware, 1551 Merkley Ave.; Sacramento Redwood Lumber Company, 3050 West Capitol Ave.; and Supply Hardware, 660 Harbor Blvd. The discounts range between ten- and twenty-percent on selected supplies and materials. Please see stores for details. Response to first Home Improvement Holiday program in 2005 exceeded expectations — approximately 180 permits were issued by the city. Last year, however, homeowners were only allowed 60 days to complete the work and have it inspected and approved. This year, the turnaround process has been extended to 180 days.

Information about the program is contained in a special brochure available from the city's Building Division at the Civic Center, second floor, 1110 West Capitol Ave. The brochure is also available online at www.cityofwestsacramento.org .

For more information about the Home Improvement Holiday, call the city's Building Division, (916) 617-4683.

BRYTE & BRODERICK:

Different city experience in north

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Student Jeong Dae Seo, Professor Ted Bradshaw, and students Danielle Fodor, Adam Hale, Vanessa Cajina, Daria Rostovtseva, Ben Yeager, Erika Bumgardner, and Kamaljeet Khaira. The graduate-level class, "Community Development Practice," is studying the northern neighborhoods of Bryte and Broderick in West Sacramento.

Perhaps a dozen West Sacramento residents showed up on Saturday to munch on pieroshkis, sip a cold drink and hear what a group of UC Davis students had to say about their neighborhood.

The students were part of a UC Davis graduate class in community development. They were reporting on the first stages of their investigation into what life is like in the two northern neighborhoods of Bryte and Broderick. The class's first report confirmed that residents of those neighborhoods are fond of their neighborhood – but have some issues with the city.

"We talked to 60 different kids from elementary schools, we talked to teachers, to parents, and to people who run programs around here," said Danielle Fodor, speaking to the guests assembled at a Lisbon street veterans' post. "The first thing they mention is the small-town feeling. When asked what they liked about this area, they said, 'my family lives here.' They meant their grandparents, their cousins – their extended family."

One school nurse in the area identified what she liked best about Bryte and Broderick:

"The best thing about this neighborhood, she said, is the kids in the street – biking, playing and running in the street. It's the way America used to be."

Fodor added that diversity was also part of the cultural fabric in the north area.

"There's a great Mexican-American community with a long history of activism, and there's a Russian community doing a lot of services through their churches."

Bryte, to the city's northwest, and Broderick, to the northeast, are often pigeonholed as lower-income and ethnically diverse – and often connected to a gang problem. Remarkably, though, crime is less of a concern among those who live there.

"Kids complained over and over that they don't feel safe from the cars," said Fodor. "There are some fast cars. And people are worried about flooding. And they don't feel safe from the police – that's really sad."

One fifth-grader, she said, said "the police are just no good and when they do come, they come too late." Others called the police "rude and racist."

One visitor to Saturday's workshop was Yvette Trevino. Married to a Broderick native, the couple moved in 2000 to Southport, primarily to find a larger home and to live somewhere where the police are less of an issue, she later told the News-Ledger.

"One of the questions (the class) asked was how do people feel about the place they lived, and the answer was that it was where 'everybody' lived – their family, meaning brothers, sisters, cousins, uncles and aunts – in a small-town atmosphere," she said. "That's the feeling you get there, and I don't get that here (in Southport)."

Trevino added that the local police answer calls in two different ways, for the north and for the south.

"The attitude they have on that side is different from on this side," she said. "The difference is when police are called here (in Southport), nobody is disrespected, or asked to sit on the curb with their hands behind their back, as I saw in Broderick and Bryte. Part of the reason we moved here is I wanted my children to be able to walk freely, without being 'profiled.' My physical location is here, but my heart is still there."

Students interviewed those who attended the workshop -- and their information-gathering continues.

School district to ratify contracts for interim managers

The school board of the Washington Unified School District on Thursday will consider ratifying the contracts of interim superintendent David Tooker and interim assistant superintendent Alec Ostrom.

The proposed contracts specify that the pair will remain until their replacements are "on board."

Tooker's compensation is listed at a daily rate of $669.40, and Ostrom's at $595 per day.

The interim superintendent was hired after the resignation of former WUSD Superintendent Patrick Campbell.

The board meets in public session at 7 p.m. Thursday at city hall, 1110 West Capitol Avenue.

Thousands march -- including local students

Activists pass West Sacramento City Hall on their way to the capital

Thousands converged on Sacramento – as they did in other city centers throughout the nation – on Monday to demonstrate in favor of immigrants' rights. Many of those headed to the capital demonstration began their walk on West Capitol Avenue in West Sacramento.

Participants included school kids leaving campus for the event.

"We had some kids who walked off," said Paul Preston, vice principal at River City High School, on Monday afternoon. "The count we currently have is 41, although that is not complete."

Preston said administrators were aware of the planned demonstration, and tried to keep students from cutting class to attend..

"They left in groups at three different times of the day," said Preston. "We confronted each group and got about 20 kids from each group to return from school. Some of the kids ran from us. Others were cooperative – we informed them that they were breaking school rules if they left. A lot of the kids really didn't know where they were going. Some of them told us 'we are going to be with the other Mexicans.' "

Preston said the students who left for the demonstration were "mostly Hispanic." The protests in Sacramento and elsewhere had a largely Hispanic-immigrant theme, although other groups were represented.

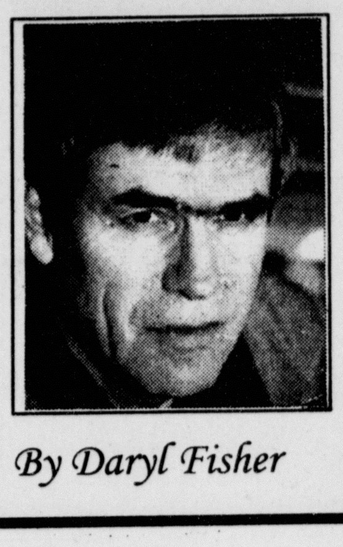
The vice principal added that those who left campus will be considered to have skipped class without permission.

West Sac moves closer to port control

A bill by Assemblywoman Lois Wolk (D-Davis) to reorganize the Port of Sacramento's governing board – and hand over majority control to West Sacramento – has passed the Assembly's Committee on Local Government in a bipartisan vote.

"The Port of Sacramento has played a key role in the movement of goods throughout California throughout its existence," said Wolk in a press release. "However, it is quite clear to all involved with the port, if it is continue to be a viable entity, to provide quality jobs in the region and to provide us with a piece to our larger transportation puzzle, changes in their government structure must be made. AB 2939 makes these changes."

Read your church newsletter carefully



By Daryl Fisher

Note: With Easter Sunday just days away, a longtime News-Ledger subscriber has requested that the following column be reprinted this week and I am more than happy to do so. Happy Easter!

Someone once told me that Portland, Oregon has more churches than any other city in the United States. Now that may be true, but for our size, it seems to me that West Sacramento can more than hold its own when it comes to the number of houses of worship in one community. And when you factor in religious diversity, West Sacramento is second to none! We have churches which minister to Catholics, Baptists, Sikhs, Mormons, Presbyterians, Lutherans, Born Again Christians, Seventh Day Adventists, and the list goes on and on.

Anyway, since we are a community of believers, and more than familiar with church newsletters, here are a few actual church newsletter "out-takes" that I think might tickle your funnybone, and which definitely could have benefited from a little proofreading:

* The cost for attending the Fasting and Prayer Conference includes meals.
* The Ladies of the Church have cast off clothing of every kind. They may be seen in the basement on Friday afternoon.
* At the evening service tonight, the sermon topic will be "What is Hell?" Come early and listen to the choir practice.
* Eight new choir robes are currently needed, due to the addition of several new members and the deterioration of some of the older ones.
* The senior choir invites any member of the congregation who enjoys sinning to join the choir.
* Miss Charlene Mason sang, "I will not pass this way again", giving obvious pleasure to the congregation.
* Ladies, don't forget the rummage sale next weekend. It's a great chance to get rid of those things not worth keeping around the house. Don't forget to bring your husbands.
* Next Sunday is the family hayride and bonfire at the Fowler's ranch. Friends are welcome! Everyone come and have a fun time. Bring your own hot dogs and guns.
* The peacemaking meeting scheduled for today has been canceled due to a conflict.
* The sermon this morning will be: "Jesus Walks on Water". The sermon tonight will be: "Searching for Jesus".
* Next Thursday there will be tryouts for the choir. They need all the help they can get.
* Barbara remains in the hospital and needs blood donors for more transfusions. She is also having trouble sleeping and has requested tapes of Pastor Jack's sermons.
* The Rector will preach his farewell message after which the choir will sing, "Break Forth Into Joy".
* Please remember in prayer the many who are sick of our community.
* Don't let worry kill you. Let the Church help.
* Bertha Belch, a missionary from Africa, will be speaking tonight at Calvary Memorial Church in Racine. Come and hear Bertha Belch all the way from Africa.
* Irving Benson and Jessie Carter were married on October 24th in the church. So ends a friendship that began in their school years.
* The Lutheran men's group will meet at 6 p.m. Steak, mashed potatoes, green beans, bread and dessert will be served for a nominal feel. And for those of you who have children and don't know it, we have a nursery downstairs.
* Please place your donation in the envelope along with the deceased person you want remembered.
* If you attend today's meeting, you will hear an excellent speaker and heave a healthy lunch.
* The church will host an evening of fine dining, superb entertainment, and gracious hostility.
* Potluck supper Sunday at 5 p.m. Prayer and medication to follow.
* This evening at 7 p.m. there will be a hymn sing in the park across from the church. Bring a blanket and come prepared to sin.
* Ladies Bible Study will be held Thursday morning at 10 a.m. All ladies are invited to lunch in the Fellowship after the B.S. is done.
* The eighth-graders will be presenting Shakespeare's Hamlet in the church basement at 7 p.m. The Congregation is invited to attend this tragedy.
* Weight Watchers will meet at 6 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church. Please use the large double doors at the side entrance.
* The Associate Minister unveiled the church's new tithing campaign slogan, which is "I Upped My Pledge. Up Yours!"
* And finally, my personal favorite: The Low Self Esteem Support Group will meet this Thursday evening. Please use the back door.

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

The NBA playoffs are taking shape this week as teams scramble to secure their playoff positions that will determine their opponents in the NBA's best of seven playoffs. The regular season ends on April 19th with the first round of the playoffs scheduled to begin on April 22nd barring any rainouts. Just kidding!

In the Eastern Conference the 76ers are again battling to qualify for the eighth and final spot in the playoffs with the Wizards, Bucks, Pacers, and don't forget "Da Bulls," who are still in the mix. The conference-favorite Detroit Pistons have locked up the best record and home court advantage followed by Miami, New Jersey and the LaBron-James-led Cavaliers.

In the Western Conference the San Antonio Spurs and Dallas Mavericks will go down to the season finale to determine the leader of the pack. The Spurs are hanging on to the home court advantage by just a half-game over Mark Cuban's Mavs. Phoenix, Denver, Memphis and the Los Angeles Clippers are in the playoffs while the Kings and Lakers jockey for final positions. The Kings hold the tiebreaker over Kobe and his Hollywood teammates.

Kings Korner

The Kings (41-37) magic number is down to just 2 games with only 4 games remaining in the 2006/07 season. As of Tuesday night the Kings were very close to clinching a playoff spot with a home game against the Pacific Division champion Suns awaiting them.

The Kings out played Yao Ming and the Rockets last Sunday to ensure finishing the season with at least a .500 winning percentage. The Kings have regained their confidence and momentum again after a brief little hiccup. Sacramento has won six of seven games and 14 out of their last 18 contests.

The difference between finishing in the seventh or the eighth spot is of course who you will play. Do you think the Kings really want to tangle with the Spurs and Tim Duncan in the first round? Actually, I think the Kings would probably prefer to play the slumping Phoenix Suns first!

The Phoenix Suns (50-26) will stroll into Sacramento just in time for the Kings to possibility clinch the seventh playoff spot, which would lock up the Suns as their first round opponent. As of Monday, the Kings held a 2-1 edge over Phoenix but keep in mind the Suns have lost 9 out their last 17 games since March 9th.

Also, Phoenix has lost their starting center Amare Stoudemire (knee surgery) and forward Kurt Thomas is out with a foot stress fracture. The Suns are ripe for first round upset and the Kings have a great match up with the smaller Suns. Remember Ron Artest predicted a first round victory and his defensive bug has infected the Kings.

After the Suns leave town on Tuesday the Kings will enjoy a couple of days off before they travel to Denver on Saturday night (6 p.m.-CSN) to play the playoff bound Nuggets. The Nuggets have locked up the Northwest Division title and the third seed in the playoffs and a likely match up with the Clippers.

The Kings will close out the regular season with two homes starting with the game of the year on Easter Sunday (6 p.m.-CSN) against the New Orleans Hornets and then purple people eaters will end the season against the Sonics on Fan's Appreciation Day Tuesday, April 18th (7 p.m.-CSN). Get your Playoff Ticket!

Major League Baseball

The Oakland A's (5-2) and San Francisco Giants (5-2) endured a week of gloomy weather to start their season's at the top of their divisions. The A's beat up both the Yankees and Mariners while the Giants took care of the Padres and Braves.

The A's will travel up north to Minnesota this week and then return home for a weekend series against Texas while the G-Men stay home to play the Astros before they travel down south for a weekend series against their division rivals, the L.A. Dodgers.

The good news this week for the Giants was that Mr. Bonds, who is in a little slump, survived his first week without hurting his sore knee but more importantly the San Francisco fans didn't hurt his feelings by booing him. Instead he was greeted with a genuinely warm welcome back to AT&T Park! Do you think the Los Angeles fans will show him any love this weekend?

River Cats

Speaking of love, the River Cats (2-3), who are on the road in Tacoma this week, will be returning to Raley Field on Friday night for another exciting season of PCL baseball. Tickets are still available so don't forget to catch the Rio Gatos home opener on Friday, April 15th (7 p.m.).

The Gatos will host Las Vegas this weekend with fireworks scheduled for Friday and Saturday nights and a 4,000 eggs post game Easter egg hunt on Sunday (1 p.m.) for the Kiddies.

Enjoy your Easter - see ya next week!

RAIDER ROUNDUP

By Troy Turner

Varsity Boys Baseball

If the varsity boys team continues to play well, they will easily make the playoffs. They have a 3-1 league record and are 12-1 overall. Last week, they played Rio Linda twice, splitting the games with a 1-0 loss and a 2-0 victory. This week, they participate in the Cordova Tournament.

Girls Varsity Softball

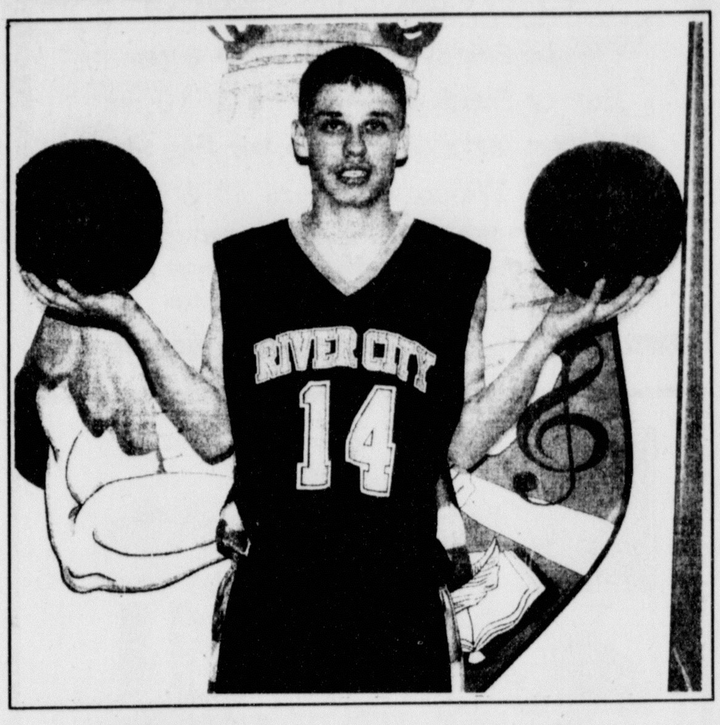
The girls are also playing very well. They are currently second place in the league, with a 4-1 record. This week, they face Rio Linda and Highlands High.

Girls Varsity Soccer

The girls varsity soccer team is currently third in the Capitol Valley Conference, with a 3-3 league record. Last week, they lost to Foothill 2-0, but came back to beat Vanden 3-2. The team has no games this week.

Boys Golf

Last week, the team played well but came up short against Rio Linda with a 253-282 loss at Wildhorse Golf Course in Davis. Jacob Geivett led the RCHS team by shooting a 42 on a par-36. The team is idle this week.



JOE ROSALES, named to all-league team

Boys Basketball

Joe Rosales was named to the Capital Valley Conference's All-League team last week. He led the Raiders in both three-point field goals and in steals, also averaging 13 points per game.

RC tennis squad shuts out Highlands

From River City High

When the River City High School tennis team traveled to Highlands a month ago they came away with a hard-fought 6 to 3 win. When the Scots made the return visit to West Sacramento last week the hosts pounded their guests 9 to 0.

At #1 girls singles, RC's Vu Tran won a lengthy three-setter 6-4,4-6,6-3. Jordan Balluch won his #1 boys single match, 6-4,6-4, and Yelena Ionova breezed to a 6-3,6-2 victory at #2 girls singles. The Raiders also had impressive showings by the girls doubles teams of Anna Bouttavong and Koy Saetern (#1) and Cindy Yang and Julie Saeteurn (#2) with each pair cruising to 10-0 shutouts. In boys doubles, Brandon Yip and Chris Salazar won 10-4 at #1 and Michael Soto and Kehoua Saechao came through with a 10-5 win.

The other two matches had Ou Saejao taking #2 boys singles 6-3,7-5, and the mixed doubles duo of Dipak Patel and Yian Saetern winning 10-2.

In the week ahead, River City will travel to Jackson for a nonleague contest against Argonaut tomorrow before heading to Fairfield for a league match at second place Vanden. The first place Raiders are 7 and 0 in league play and 11 and 0 overall.

Open letter to the mayor

In December of 2005 Mr. Frank Salmon, district director of League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), wrote a letter to Mayor Cabaldon requesting a meeting to discuss concerns and the future of LULAC in West Sacramento. Tragically, on January 10, 2006, Mr. Salmon passed away without ever receiving any response from the mayor to his letter. LULAC members still want a response to Mr. Salmon's concerns and again request a meeting. I am submitting those concerns in the following open letter to Mayor Cabaldon:

On behalf of LULAC, I wish to extend my thanks to the City of West Sacramento for including LULAC in the Community Day Parade on October 1, 2005. It is our sincere desire as a part of the Hispanic community to bring our knowledge and culture to aid in the growth of the city. As a participant in the parade, we were honored to be there; however, after being in the parade behind the horses, we were only thankful there were no Brahma bulls entered in the festivities. It is to be hoped that the next parade will change the marching order to take pity on the marchers. We were also concerned that many of the viewers were unable to hear the information about LULAC's goals and purposes as the fire department took that moment to sound the siren on its truck. While some members of LULAC were upset by what they perceived as a lack of courtesy, I feel you and members should meet to discuss this and future issues concerning West Sacramento and LULAC.

I have been impressed with your courage to speak out against unfair development and also share a very personal issue with our city and others. Now I ask you to have the courage to respond to this letter and agree to a meeting with LULAC. The wait has been long and I implore you to end that wait and help us work together to make a better city for all of us.

Immigration thoughts

We are not having an immigration policy debate. We're having an argument over how to deal with law-breaking criminals who have broken into our country, stolen our resources, lowered our wages, and polluted the debate over what it means to be an American.

The undocumented workers (migrants, immigrants, etc.) are criminals by the very act of crossing our borders illegally, let along obtaining and using fraudulent documents. They are illegal aliens, not illegal immigrants, and yes, there is a vast difference between the two. Immigrants emigrate to a new land to better themselves and their family's future, by becoming proud citizens of their newly adopted country; learning its ways, language and culture. Migrants, on the other hand, migrate (wander) from land to land, area to area, looking for the betterment of their own circumstances, whether for the short or long haul. They're not interested in acculturating to the culture of the place they happen to find themselves living in at the moment. Their allegiance is to the land they call home; the one in which they were born. They don't care if they lower the living standards of whatever land they find themselves in as long as theirs are raised.

My paternal grandmother refused to teach her children the language and cultural practices of her native land as they were "in the new country and have to be prepared for success". My mother's side of the family have been here for generations. We don't take kindly to usurpers.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Eminent (not imminent) domain

EMINENT DOMAIN: two words that strike fear into the heart of many a renter or property owner. And the fear is multiplied several-fold among those who are on a fixed income, just hanging on to a place to live.

Eminent domain is the legal authority that allows some government agencies to "take" private land for the public good. It's a process that's often misunderstood – just as it seems to be right now in West Sacramento. The gossip mill is producing stories of eminent domain spelling doom for local property owners and renters. These rumors have come from several parts of town. They may have been triggered by the city's recent renewal of the eminent domain authority of the West Sacramento Redevelopment Agency. Some may have misinterpreted this action as the actual "use" of eminent domain muscle, which it isn't.

One thing to understand about "eminent domain" is that it doesn't just sneak up on you and grab your property with no warning. Before the government (the state, the school district, the city, the redevelopment agency) can use eminent domain, it first must try to negotiate with a property owner to strike a deal. If they want your property, they will try to buy it just like another potential buyer might.

If negotiations fail, though, and the government agency still wants the property badly enough (to widen a street, build a school or make way for redevelopment, for example) then the government agency can consider using eminent domain. This is really a last resort, and both the property owner and the taxpayers must be kept informed about such an attempt.

One reason it is usually a last resort is because using eminent domain is usually time-consuming and expensive. If the government and the landowner can't agree to the land sale or to a price, then the government can come up with its view of a "fair market" price, and potentially can force the sale.

But the property owner still has protections, and can fight both the "necessity" of the unwilling land sale and its price. And if the property owner takes the government to court over the final price, often a jury will sympathize with the property owner and adjust the value of the land (to be paid by the government) quite high. Meanwhile, legal fees have also mounted.

So the process is not quick or cheap.

And while much of West Sacramento will change over coming decades – South River Road will be expanded, some mobile home parks will morph into other uses, farmlands will sprout houses, motels on West Capitol will phase out – rarely will eminent domain be pulled from the toolbox. Usually, land use changes will come from plain old-fashioned market forces.

There is of course at least one place in West Sacramento where the use of eminent domain does loom overhead: the local school board is badly trying to buy several homes on Jefferson Boulevard where the new high school is intended to go.

Letters to the Editor

Levees and growth concerns

After watching the State of the City address, reading various articles and attending last week's city council meeting, I feel compelled to write this letter. By now you should know I'm a stickler for the law and the truth and I'd like to set the record straight on some recent issues.

As I stated at the city council meeting I find it offensive that the mayor and his acquaintances keep referring to our concerns over the levees as "mass hysteria." No one I know is hysterical over the issue. If we were, we'd be long gone from this area. Asking our politicians to be realistic and take appropriate action is not hysteria. Also, I don't appreciate the mayor spinning our words and insinuating our comments before the council were "politically charged." Frankly, I don't like being lied to. When the article in the Sacramento Bee came out a few weeks back and said that on February 28th the mayor had filed papers to get our critical levee erosion sites attached to the governor's federal aid packet, I was bothered that at the March 1st city council meeting he said, "In terms of the critical sites the governor's identified that constitutes a national emergency by the president there is no such levee in West Sacramento." No, the governor did not specifically name a site in West Sacramento, but our sites were highlighted in his map attached to the declaration.

The mayor, regardless of what he is saying now, insinuated that we had nothing to worry about. The reality is that we do have boils and seepage issues. Being that the engineers in New Orleans now know that under seepage is what compromised their levees, we need to be safe and not sorry.

The mayor downplaying the question of whether people should obtain flood insurance by comparing our changes of flooding to the chance of an earthquake causing damage is offensive. Why would a mayor, of any city, not want to completely protect their community? I also don't understand the dialogue in the community that purchasing flood insurance would decrease the value of our homes. It doesn't make sense. Personally, I think the developers are concerned that all the talk about the levee issues will put a moratorium on growth and affect their bottom line. How many of our developers actually live in our community?

Being that I am a member of Save Our City and speaking for myself, I'd like to set the record straight about other rumors I've heard, including comments made by the mayor. We are not anti-growth. The initiative is not anti-growth. We want the infrastructure such as fire, police, safety and traffic put in place to accommodate what we have now and what will be built later. We want to see our schools built. One big misconception I've heard is that the developers are providing schools in each project. The truth is the developers have designated property to accommodate a school, they are not actually contributing anything. When the school district is paying $450,000 an acre as well as all the costs associated with building the much needed schools, the developers aren't contributing. Frankly, the funding isn't there to build schools and won't be even with the many new residents.

Those of us who have lived in this community for many years welcome newcomers, but please don't offend us because we cherish our small town atmosphere and farming areas. Please don't insult us by suggesting we are not educated or less affluent and please remember we all pay taxes! This town worked really hard to come together as one community. Please don't try to segregate it or make it "us vs. them."

DANI LANGFORD
West Sacramento

Be prepared

After Hurricane Katrina devastated New Orleans suddenly the Sacramento area was declared the nation's most flood-prone metropolitan area. Why? Because we are surrounded by waterways and an aging levee system. And those tons of silt from contributory creeks and too much trash being illegally dumped reduces the capacity of our rivers to carry water from melted snow and storms. Hopefully, when water levels subside, we can dredge our Sacramento/American rivers, Yolo Causeway, etc., using most of the silt to provide more flood prevention landscaping. Larger and more storm drains would help, too.

Since control is key, it seems immediate and future flood prevention should be tied to rezoning/redevelopment. Why not design habitat set aside land so that it also helps control flooding? For instance, envision vast acreage being developed where a significant portion is excavated for a fairly deep lake, using diggings to form mountain around same, tied to rivers and creeks.

Finally, emergency kits won't be the same for all if we should experience flooding and it's time for us to consider making a list of various items we would be very uncomfortable without, not the least of which would be our prescription drugs. The list should include all of our medical information, including our

"Ice Age: The Meltdown"

Running time: 93 minutes
MPAA rating: PG

It's safe to say that no one is going to see "Ice Age: The Meltdown" because they're looking forward to an electrifying performance by Ray Romano. No, the reason why anyone over the age of say, fetus, is heading to the theater is to get another healthy dose of Scrat the Sabertoothed Squirrel.

Thankfully, the filmmakers know their audience, and I'm happy to say that there are a LOT more scenes of Scrat's futile (and painful) attempts to capture the Last Acorn on Earth.

Of course, the film isn't totally about Scrat. The plot revolves around a bunch of animals who have three days to escape their valley home before an ice dam breaks and floods them into extinction. Helping the animals are the heroes from the first film: Manny the Mammoth (voiced by Ray Romano), Diego the Sabertooth Tiger (Denis Leary) and Sid the Sloth (John Lequizamo).

There's also a boring and unconvincing subplot involving Manny's fretting about being the last of his kind, until he meets Ellie (Queen Latifah), a female mammoth who thinks she's a possum.

The main plot is pretty pedestrian. We all know that everything's gonna turn out fine; everyone will live happily ever after; and anyone whose character at the beginning of the film has some personal demon to conquer will, by Act Three, have a Personal Growth Moment.

Dennis Leary as Diego and John Leguizamo as Sid the Sloth.

Which is all fine and good for a children's movie. What's Old Hat to us grown-ups is fresh and new to the younguns, and goodness knows kids need some lessons in commitment, friendship and family.

But for the rest of us, it's all about Scrat.

CELEBRITY extra

Q. Is Mariska Hargitay of "Law & Order: SVU" going to continue with the show after the arrival of her new baby, or is she out for good? — Donna S.

A. As of this writing, Hargitay, 42, and her husband, actor Peter Hermann, 38, are expecting the birth of their baby boy any moment now. Hargitay's character on "SVU," Olivia Benson, was sent away on a "special assignment," and "Gladiator" actress Connie Nielsen is temporarily taking her place. Filming for fall 2006 episodes of "SVU" will commence in July, with the new mommy slated to return to the role she originated with the series back in 1999.

Q. Please tell us why The WB's "7th Heaven" is going away. Many thanks. — Marilyn K.

A. Well, Marilyn, even good, wholesome, family entertainment must come to an end — especially if it is losing money. Contrary to published reports, The WB's 2nd-highest-rated show and longest-running series, "7th Heaven," isn't being canceled because of poor ratings, but rather because of its high production cost. In fact, WB Chairman Garth Ancier said that the series loses $16 million a year. "As much as we all love the show, we do have to run a business," he said recently.

There have been mumblings of a spin-off of sorts, but no definite plans have been announced as of yet. Also, Jessica Biel fans take note — some reports are saying that Mary Camden will be returning for the series finale in May. Keep your fingers crossed!

Q. Why is it that "The Bold and The Beautiful," (which) is one of the most watched daytime soaps, is only on for a half hour when (other soaps) are on for an hour? — Lillian J.

Jessica Biel

A. One of my colleagues asked the late Bill Bell, who created "The Bold and The Beautiful," if he would move the series into an hour format, like its sister soap, "The Young and the Restless." At the time, Bell said he saw no reason to do so. However, he indicated that if the hour-long soaps proved to be more popular, he might look into expanding "B&B."

But expansion, even for a highly popular show, can be a problem. You would need to add extra people as actors, writers and production aides. Also, if "B&B" took an extra half hour out of the daytime period, CBS would have to move something else out, and they might be reluctant to expand "B&B's" time at the expense of other shows.

All this being said, remember that soaps first started as 15 minute shows and expanded to 90 minutes in some cases. So changes do happen.

"My Life in France"
By Julia Child with Alex Prud'homme
(Alfred A. Knopf, $25.95)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Even though Julia Child is no longer with us, her legacy continues to influence how we think about both food and cuisine.

She often said that her love with food began in 1948 when she arrived in France, a newlywed, and accompanied by her diplomat husband, Paul. Even though she didn't know a single word of French, she plunged into the culture of the country and eventually enrolled in the Cordon Bleu.

In 1963 she launched her incredibly successful television program, "The French Chef," on PBS. Her broadcasts earned her a Peabody Award in 1965, an Emmy in 1966 and spawned several best-selling cookbooks.

Alex Prud'homme, the grandnephew of Paul Child, developed a close working relationship with Julia. Together they began work on her memoir, but it was not completed until shortly after her death in 2004. After several edits and rewrites, it is finally being published this spring.

The book is well worth the wait.

Filled with beautiful black-and-white family photographs, "My Life in France" is laced with wonderful stories about the French character, particularly in the world of food, and the way of life that Julia embraced throughout much of her adult life.

During an interview with The Associated Press in 1989, Child said that what's dangerous and discouraging about this era is that people are afraid of their food.

"Sitting down to dinner is a trap, not something to enjoy," she said, and added that people should take their food more seriously, learn what you can eat and enjoy it thoroughly.

Like a well-prepared meal, her final book is satisfying in every way. Le voici. Er bon appetit!

Jill Jackson's HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD ... Wonder what might have happened if Nicole Kidman had not dropped out of "Mr. and Mrs. Smith"? Angelina and Brad might never have become close. Jennifer and Brad might still be together, or maybe something might have sparked between Brad and Nicole. Who knows? What we do know is Nicole's career continues to soar, while her personal relationships have gone sour. Her next film is a spy thriller with the title and the plot still under wraps.

Basking in the glow of his latest, "The DaVinci Code," Tom Hanks has announced his next film is "How Starbucks Saved My Life." From the sublime to the ridiculous, this one is about an older advertising executive who loses his job and goes to work at Starbucks to earn a buck. He becomes close with the young manager and learns all about love and life.

Lotta letters asking about John Malkovich. Yup, he definitely is still with us. His next film will be "The Mutant Chronicles," based on a popular board game, to shoot in early summer in Britain and on the Isle of Man. Malkovich is a very private person. He doesn't do the Hollywood scene or make like a movie star. I've never met him, so I can't tell you more about the man except that he has two children that I know of, Amandine and Lowey, and that he is possibly one of the best actors around today. Coincidentally, as I write this I'm wearing a T-shirt with Malkovich's head on the front. It was sent to me some time ago plugging one of his pictures.

Barbra Streisand is talking another concert. And as she talks, a book has hit the stalls telling of her former "liaisons." Among them, Prince Charles and Bill Clinton! Also Dodi Fayed, Andre Agassi, Warren Beatty, Liam Neeson, Peter Jennings, Omar Sharif, Richard Gere, Don Johnson and Ryan O'Neal. I was at a screening one evening at a theater in Westwood (a suburb of L.A.), and Babs and Ryan sneaked in when the lights went down, sat in the back row, and "smooched" all through the film.

However, as far as we know, Funny Girl is very happily settled in as Mrs. James Brolin.

How many of you remember Vera-Ellen? She co-starred with Bing Crosby in "White Christmas," and though she made many other movies, she never reached top stardom. She was better known as one of the first actresses who became anorexic. At 5 foot 4 inches, her weight dropped to 62 pounds. Producer Gene Corman has bought the screen rights to the book "Vera-Ellen: The Magic and the Mystery." Actress-writer Di Dean, who claims to be the daughter of James Dean in her recently published book "Hollywood Lit," will play Vera-Ellen.

BITS 'N' PIECES: If you're in the Carmel, Calif., area and strolling the beach, you might just bump into Mayor Clint E. taking his daily stroll, or maybe Doris Day or Joan Fontaine doing the same. ... BRITNEY, PREGGERS AGAIN! Say it isn't so!

EIGHT INDEPENDENT-LEADER FRIDAY, MARCH 31, 1922.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY NOTES

The Sacramento river registered 17 feet 5 inches, U. S. gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. This is a material raise since a week ago when the gauge showed 12 feet 6 inches. Melting snow in the foothills is believed to be the cause for the late raise.

"Hip-at-Home" is not an imitation of the Hippodrome of Sacramento, but something that entirely outclasses anything pulled off at the big theatre. This show will be presented by the young folks of Washington on Friday evening, April 7th, at the public school building, and has been in course of preparation for several weeks. Some snappy bouts will be put on by the youngsters for their parents and friends.

After an absence of several months in Reno, Verne Pankost arrived in Washington last Thursday morning. He will remain during the summer and will likely engage in the fish business.

Charles Newton has been confined to his bed for several days and has been under the care of physicians. Yesterday he was somewhat improved but not entirely out of danger.

Peter McGregor is able to be out and around after a serious spell of flue, followed by pneumonia. He was confined to his bed for over two weeks.

Enforcement officers searched the premises of Joe Beltrami yesterday but were highly disgusted when they were forced to leave without finding any liquor of any kind that did not come within the Volstead law. Lately there has been no trouble i nWashington or in this section of Yolo County.

Last Monday W. F. Smith was tendered a surprise party at his home on Elizabeth street on the occasion of his 74th birthday. His daughter, Mrs. Lottie Miller, arranged the surprise and Jack Moran was chief cook and master of ceremonies for the occasion. Several guests assembled at the Smith home and enjoyed a great feast, after which an evening of entertainment was spent by the guests, among them being E. Walters and wife of Sacramento, the latter being a niece of Mr. Smith; John Allerton and wife, G. Losier, Jack Moran, Lottie Miller and children. Mr. Smith is hale and hearty and except for a sprained knee is in good health.

Salmon are still very scarce in the Sacramento river, and although local men have been out steadily only a few fish have been taken. Dave Barry landed the biggest fish of the season last Tuesday when he pulled in a 40 pounder.

The shipyards of the Sacramento Transportation Co. continue to be very busy, although nearly all boats and barges have been overhauled during the winter months. If the stage of the river permits the dry docking of boats and barges during the spring and summer, a full crew of men will be retained by the corporation At the present time there are about forty men engaged in the shipyards.

Mrs. I. K. Manchester and Mrs. O. P. Cook will represent the Washington Parent-Teacher Association at the meeting April 11th of the Third District Federation in Woodland.

Sheriff J. W. Monroe came over last Tuesday from Woodland on business.

D. C. Gregory has returned from Los Angeles where he visited relatives.

Mrs. Herman Garber has gone to Oakland to visit her mother, Mrs. William Edenson.

The Easter vacation of the Washington School was set for April 7th to April 17th at a meeting last Monday of the trustees.

Mrs. Henry Jasper of Wheatland was guest of honor Monday evening at a birthday dinner given at the A. M. Cameron home by Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. F. L. White, Jr. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jasper, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Moddison, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. White, Jr., Mrs. Jeanette Brock and son, Norton.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Eugene have returned from a visit with their daughter, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, in Fallon, Nev.

The girls of the Sunbeam Class of the Washington Community Church will give an April Fool's party Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. A. M. Cameron.

Dorma L. Freese, incumbent, has announced his candidacy to succeed himself for the office of School Trustee for the Bryte district. The election will be held Friday afternoon at the Bryte school.

The Bryte Improvement Club will give a dance Saturday night at the school.

Julius Noyes is improving his property by the construction of a new garage.

DEATH BLOW MAY END LIFE OF DAN FOLEY

At the point of death with a fractured skull, Daniel Foley lies unconscious at the White Hospital in Sacramento with scarcely a chance for recovery.

Last Saturday night on his way home, when close to the Capital Candy & Cracker Co.'s factory on the Southern Pacific bridge, Foley was dealt a powerful blow with a blackjack or other blunt instrument that fractured his skull about seven inches. The exact time cannot be said for about 8:30 he was found clinging to the rail of the bridge between the center of the draw and the stairway at the western end.

He was picked up by Mrs. Olga Machado and her husband, who were on their way to Sacramento in an auto.

They conveyed him immediately to the home of his mother at Fourth and Anne streets. Physicians were called and ordered him removed to a hospital.

Since he was found clinging to the bridge rail he has not regained consciousness.

Last night his condition was precarious. He was still unconscious and evidently in great pain.

His physicians extend no hope for his recovery and his friends are at a loss to know why he was so badly treated, except that a bandit beat him and robbed him and then made his escape.

Foley has been in the employ of the Wood-Curtis Co. for more than thirty years. He was the soul of fidelity and an example of constancy. Seldom or never did he miss a day at his work.

He was abstemious to a fault, not even indulging in soft drinks.

Sacramento and Yolo officers are running down clues that may lead to the arrest of the bandit.

SYLVADA M'DONALD LEADS IN QUEEN CONTEST FOR SCIOTS

In the contest for Queen of the Sciots Industrial Show that will be held in Sacramento near the end of April, Miss Sylvada McDonald of Washington lead all competitors last Wednesday.

Last Thursday she was displaced by another young lady but today she holds second place once more.

Miss McDonald is in this race to win a valuable prize and in addition to rule over a show that promises a week of fun and diversion.

The honor is no mean one and friends of the young lady feel she is just the kind of girl who would grace the celebration and do honor to her home town.

She is in a hard fight, however, and is at the disadvantage of being a poor girl, while society girls of the Capitol City have wads of backing and coin to spare.

Miss McDonald is the sole support of her mother. Since she was sixteen years old she has been at work with the Southern Pacific Co. in the freight office at Front and J streets, and so highly is she esteemed there that every man in the institution is behind her with might and main to win the honor for her and get her the first prize.

It is understood also that Union Labor men have adopted her as their choice in this contest.

Every young man in Washington and every girl of the town has buckled on their armor to fight for Sylvada McDonald. They have made up their minds that she will be Queen of the Sciots celebration to reign for a week and to win the prize offered in the contest.

Miss McDonald will not be the first young lady of Washington to be honored in a similar way.

Several years ago Miss Aileen Newton (now Mrs. R. G. Steven), was elected May Queen. Later Miss Wolf was May Queen in Woodland, and still later Fern Todhunter filled a similar place in another competitive position.

This time the people of Washington and Yolo County want Sylvada McDonald for Queen of the Sciots Industrial Show.

BANK CLEARINGS SHOW STEADY INCREASE

For the week ending Thursday, March 30, the bank clearings of Sacramento showed an increase that is well worth noting, especially when it is known that in many other parts of the United States there has been a steady decrease.

The reading this week shows:

For week ending March 30, 1922	$4,029,837.06
For week ending March 30, 1921	3,994,101.09
Increase	$35,736.87

YOLO BOARD OF TRADE AND GRAND JURY WILL MEET AT CLARKSBURG APRIL 3

When the Yolo County Board of Trade directors meet next Monday, the members thereof will assemble in Clarksburg, not for any other reason than to become acquainted with a fast developing country. Gus Olsen, head of the farm bureau there, is chairman of a committee on reception and entertainment, in the hope to make the session all that it should be.

It is the first of a series of meetings to be held, under a new policy to better acquaint the board of trade with the requirements and the general conditions in various parts of the county.

Recently the Davis Business Men's Association evolved the idea of visiting farms and stock ranches in the vicinity of Davis, with the result that recently the college town men discovered that within a radius of twelve miles in and about Davis there were more prize winning stock of state, national and international possibilities than in any similar area in the United States.

The Yolo board of trade directors plan to emulate the Davis business men in this respect.

The Clarksburg district of Yolo County and the Netherlands and West Sacramento districts have been badly neglected by Yolo County officials for many years.

Rarely, if ever, have county officials visited those districts and so gross is this neglect that some of the county officials are unknown to the voters of these districts.

Sheriff Monroe is an exception to this charge for he frequently sees the people of those districts in a social or official way.

The meeting next Monday will be a pleasant exception that should result in much good.

Roads in the above mentioned districts are about to be improved. At this writing they are in poor condition and in order to understand that condition the county officials should go along with the board of trade and grand jury to view conditions as they are.

Complaint was heard some time ago about the high cost of running the Clarksburg ferry, but when an accounting was made there was no further kick.

It was shown that this ferry transports across the river about 4,000 autos every month, or more than 100 every day.

It was shown also that nearly 10,000 passengers use this ferry every month.

These reclaimed districts are bringing vast wealth to the county. Great amounts are being paid into the country treasury by taxpayers of these districts.

They are deserving of attention and this step of the board of trade is only just recognition for a growing territory.

TOWN HALL IS NEARLY READY FOR PICTURE SHOWS

Broderick, March 20, 1922.

Editor Independent-Leader:

Dear Sir—I, as a taxpayer, voter and a resident of the town of Washington, would like to know if the Town Hall belongs to the people or if it belongs to the two elected Fire Commissioners as a theatre or a playhouse?

GEO. PATTERSON.

Presumably the writer is fully aware that the town hall is the property of the people to be used for their purposes under the control of the elected Fire Commissioners.

This understanding has prevailed for many years and has not lately changed, but it seems the question was prompted by the report that the town hall has been rented by the Fire Commissioners to be used as a moving picture show house by Dr. T. H. Dixon of Knights Landing and Oakland.

Many taxpayers of the town are of the impression that the building should not be rented permanently for a show house. This would prevent it being used for public meetings and other community purposes.

If proper reservations were made in such renting there might be no objection.

The Independent inquired yesterday from the Fire Commissioners if any reservations were made and was told there was no information to be given out now except that the show would likely open sometime during the middle of next week.

Alterations have been made in the building in the way of fixing an operating room.

Yesterday workmen were fastening the seats to the dance floor with screws but were stopped by Supervisor Leinberger and Judge Barry.

Such procedure would ruin the dance floor, a fact that all taxpayers would resent.

It is understood that the Fire Commissioners have contracted the hall to Dr. Dixon for a year at a rental of $25.00 per month. This is a fair rental and would help to keep the building in repair.

There is no real objection, it appears, against renting the hall for a show house if only the proper reservations are made in a binding lease.

PURCHASE OF S. F. SHORT LINE BY W. P. NOT CONTEMPLATED

San Francisco, March 29.—"I can assure you there is not a word of truth in the report."

This is the way C. M. Levey, president of the Western Pacific Railroad, today answered a question as to a report from Chico that the Western Pacific contemplates the acquisition of the Sacramento-San Francisco Railroad.

The electric line connects Sacramento and Oakland with a ferry connection with San Francisco.

Levey said surveys for the contemplated extension of the Sacramento Northern Railroad, now a Western Pacific property, from Woodland to Vallejo, via Vacaville, Winters and Suisun, was steadily progressing.

FIRE COMMISSIONER ELECTION PROMISES NEW LIFE

Next Monday there will be more interest in the election of three Fire Commissioners than there has been for years.

Although little interest prevailed concerning the election during the past few weeks a new and unexpected feature has cropped up to stir popular interest.

Some time ago the present commissioners announced they would not be candidates again. Subsequently they rented the town hall for a moving picture show house and immediately ears began to prick up.

A few weeks ago the candidacy of J. S. Lear, Sid Rickard and Dave Barry was announced. They held the field for several weeks without opposition but now again it has been reported the old Fire Commissioners are in a receptive mood.

The election will be held next Monday afternoon between 2 p. m. and 6 p. m.

The election officers are Mrs. A. A. Dassonville, Mrs. F. De Riso and Mrs. I. K. Manchester.

FIRST COMMUNION AND CONFIRMATION NEXT SUNDAY

In the Church of Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament next Sunday morning, ten young children will receive their First Communion at the 9 o'clock Mass.

The children have been prepared for this solemn occasion by Rev. Father Marcucci.

At the 10:30 a. m. Mass in Riverbank a class of eight children will receive their First Communion from Rev. Father Marcucci.

At 3 p. m. Right Rev. Bishop P. J. Keane will administer the Sacrament of Confirmation to a class of about twenty-five children and adults in the Catholic Church in Washington.

Special preparation has been made for both occasions by Rev. Father Marcucci and an augmented choir will render appropriate music and singing in the morning and afternoon.

The solemn ceremony of Confirmation will draw a large crowd in the afternoon, especially because Bishop Keane will be assisted by several priests from Sacramento.

Prevention Easier Than Treatment

Protecting Dogs From Lyme Disease

(NAPS)—Caring for dogs involves more than just feeding and walking them. Protecting dogs from potentially debilitating Lyme disease is crucial for their health and happiness.

While many people take precautions against ticks and Lyme disease for themselves, it's not uncommon for man's best friend to be overlooked.

To educate dog owners about canine Lyme disease, Merial and the Lyme Disease Foundation have partnered to promote April as Prevent Lyme in Dogs Month. Spring is the start of tick season in most areas, but concerns about Lyme disease last all spring and summer as pets spend more time outdoors.

The number of cases of Lyme disease has increased more than 50-fold since 1982. Lyme disease has been found to be most common in certain areas of the United States, including the Northeastern, Mid-Atlantic and upper Midwest regions, plus northern California and Oregon. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Lyme disease has been found in humans in 49 states.

Lyme disease is caused by the bacterium Borrelia burgdorferi that is transmitted by the deer tick. Clinical signs of the disease in canines include: shifting leg lameness, fever, swollen joints, muscle soreness, malaise, chronic arthritis, facial paralysis, seizures and acute renal failure.

Tips For Preventing Canine Lyme Disease by Merial

- Avoid taking your dog to wooded and tall-grass areas
- Check your dog for ticks after coming indoors
- Have your dog vaccinated annually with RECOMBITEK® Lyme vaccine
- Use a tick control product, such as FRONTLINE® brand product, monthly
- Brush your dog regularly to make identifying ticks easier

"Taking preventive measures against Lyme disease can spare dogs from the disease's horrible symptoms," says Richard Ford, DVM, MS, DACVIM, DACVPM (hon), College of Veterinary Medicine at North Carolina State University. "In addition to regularly checking dogs for ticks, pet owners should know how to prevent Lyme disease."

RECOMBITEK® Lyme vaccine protects dogs from Lyme disease and should be used in conjunction with FRONTLINE® brand product. The two work together to help ensure that animals are safe from ticks and Lyme disease. Both products, made by Merial, are available from your local veterinarian.

Detailed information about Lyme disease and its prevention can be found at www.LymePrevention.com.
